Special Meeting Is Well Attended

A good crowd was present in the Stake House on Monday night when a special meeting was held to give residents of Raymond an opportunity to hear Elders Joseph Fielding and David A. Smith, the first a member of the Quorum of the Twelve and the latter First Counselor in the Presiding Bishopric, who were here for Conference in the Lethbridge and Albert, Stakes, but were unable to remain for the Taylor Stake Conference next Saturday and Sunday.

Pres. H. S. Allen had charge of the direction of C. F. Tollestrup, the congregation joining in the songs.

The opening song was "The Spirit of God Like a Fire Is Burning," and the opening prayer was offered by Pres. J. W. Evans, followed by "High on the Mountain Top."

In a few opening remarks Pres. Allen expressed his pleasure at being able to hear the visitors in meeting, and explained that because of the heat harvest being yet unfinished, many were detained from the meeting who would otherwise be present and that many were engaged in the Sugar Factory, and while he regretted that more could not be at the meeting, he was very glad that we had these things to keep us occupied and busy in these times.

Elder Joseph Fielding Smith, the first speaker of the evening and spoke on the temporal conditions of the world today. Speaking of the people in this part of the country he said that we did not have many real troubles and that the Lord had certainly not forsaken us. None should get discouraged because, if we live the commandments of the Lord and keep our promises with Him, He will never forsake us. After all there is nothing of more value than our testimony of the Gospel and our knowledge of its saving principles, and it was the greatest delight of the Lord to bless us. He then referred to the experiences of the children of Israel in their travels from Egypt to the Promised Land, and stated that had it not been for their disobedience and rebellion, that trip could have been made in a much shorter time, as the distance is not really a very great one. He read from the Bible the promise of blessings of the Lord for faithfulness, and of judgments for rebellion, and stated that many of these could be applied to us, just as well as to the children of Israel and that we would get the same blessings for our obedience. He also quoted from the Doctrine and Covenants, Sec. 59, and stated that these promises were ours if we lived them, and that the Lord delighted to see His children prosperous and happy, but that these things must be bought and paid for in obedience and good works, and the world as a whole was not going to do the will of the Lord. Referring to conditions in the world today, he said that they were the result of disobedience, and that the efforts for peace and disarmament were not the effect of brotherly love between the nations, but rather the effect of fear, because they were afraid of each other. There is no use looking for peace to come to the earth until the coming of Jesus Christ, as he is the Prince of Peace, and when He comes, He will set things in order so that there will be peace, selfishness, greed and not being satisfied were some of the causes of our present conditions, and we must have above these things before conditions will change much. Compared with the members of the Church in the early days, we were all rich, and we should cease our worrying and despondency and thank the Lord for our many blessings, and go forth with a determination to serve Him more fully.

Elder David A. Smith spoke next and explained the workings of the Church in its various organizations to interest and bring in the young men of the Church. The Priesthood Quorums, the Sunday Schools, and the Mothers, are all working for the same purpose of keeping the young men and boys on the right road, and where the program is carried out as it is intended that it should be, great progress is being made and success is attending the efforts of those working to this end. He related instances of young men who had carried on in the various wards, and of the great good it had done the boys, as well as the people whom they had met in carrying on their church activities. Despite all these efforts, he said, there are still 2 out of every 3 of the men and boys of the Aarsenic Priesthood inactive, and while this situation exists, there is still work for all to do. Inactivity generally comes from one of two major sources, viz. breaking of the Word of Wisdom, and the lack of encouragement from father or mother or the wrong environment in the home, and it should be the business of all to see if these things could be improved. All Church organizations, he said, are now working together to benefit the boys and girls, particularly the boys who will be the men of a few years hence and carrying the responsibilities of leadership.

After the closing song "Do What is Right," the benediction was pronounced by Pres. O. H. Shaw.

Canada's apple-growing belt is moving northward. Standard apples have been grown this year at the Dominion Experimental Farm at Beaveridge, Alberta, which is 428 miles north of the international boundary between Canada and the United States.

Canada has entered the British West Africa market for tobacco with a trial shipment of 25 cases of Canadian-grown tobacco, recently. About 77 per cent of British West Africa tobacco has been secured from the United States, but Canada hopes to get the market under the new inter-empire preference.

National Fish Week between October 24-31 has been supported by the Canadian Pacific Railway since 1913 and this year was no exception. The company marked the celebration with special menu cards, in this fish products of the regions of Canada through which the railway runs between Saint John, N.B., and Vancouver, British Columbia.

Canada lost one of its best-known and popular railroad officials recently when A. Aiken, assistant superintendent of the Pacific Division, Canadian Pacific Railway, dropped dead in Toronto on his way to his office. Mr. Aiken was 60 years of age and had spent 31 years in the company's service.

The Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain was the scene of a wedding reception and breakfast at Quebec recently, following the marriage of Miss Martha St. Laurent, daughter of the president of the Canadian Bar Association, to Dr. Matthew Samson. Two hundred guests filled past the wedding group assembled in the Mayfair Lounge of the Empress.

Not forgetting his work as director-general of the National Flood Relief Commission in 1931, China has asked Sir John Hope Simpson, famous British organizer, to join the newly created National Economic Council. Leaving a money belt containing round tickets and a coal thousand dollars or so in cash at his Vancouver hotel, Charles Clarke, Los Angeles, only discovered his loss after his ship, the Empress of Canada, had sailed from Vancouver. While en route to the Canadian Pacific steamship general passenger agent resulted in recovery of the belt and its forwarding by airplane in time to reach the vessel before she left Victoria. (375)

Notes On Priesthood Meeting

The regular Priesthood and Stake Board Meetings of the Taylor Stake of Zion were held Sunday afternoon with Pres. Allen taking charge of the General Assembly at 3:45.

Night young men were sustained and accepted for promotion to Elders as follows: Jack Evans, Selby Jewelson, Carl Salmon, Fred Romeril, Howard Oliver and Ralph Meldrum of the Raymond Second Ward. Jack Mendenhall from the Raymond First Ward, and L. Clark of the Stirling Ward.

Misses Lolla Williams and Winnie Everson were sustained as members of the Stake Board of the Y.L.M.I.A.

President Allen announced a Public Meeting for Monday night in the Stake House at which Elders Joseph Fielding Smith of the Council of the Twelve and David A. Smith of the Presiding Bishopric would be the speakers.

President Allen then spoke for a few minutes and reported on the recent Semi Annual Conference. He stated that many of the speakers held out encouragement for the people in the midst of present conditions and stated that while none offered any remedy for conditions, they felt that if we would do our best that the Lord would open up the way for us. He suggested that everyone be careful with the use of their means, as he feared that next year would be as bad or even worse than this year, as most of this year's crop was already gone, and few would have any thing more in the way of financial returns until next fall again, and he could see but little hope for improvement in conditions.

He was glad however that we as a people were self supporting and able to get along without calling on charity and help from the Church, which he said a great many were forced to do in the larger centers, and that the Church had been asked for substantial sums during the last year or so to help those in dire need of the necessities of life. He encouraged all to pay their fast offerings and stated that every member of the Church would do this that there would be a fund provided to care for all the needy of the Church.

Words at the rate of 30 to 40,000 a day are filling the pages of Hansard in the debate on Conference agreements—without getting any nearer agreement on the subject. Some sixty members have not only expressed their views but have for the most part, occupied their full 40 minutes in elaborating their reasons so it is not strange that attendance in the House, both floor and galleries, has fallen off. As far as liberal and Conservative members are concerned they have run true to tradition, all the supporters of the Prime Minister approving the agreements and the followers of Mr. King disagreeing, how can a mere layman form an opinion.

Of the sixty speakers probably one third have been Conservative, including several Ministers, and whatever the general public may think of the Prime Minister no one can doubt that he has won the respect and loyalty of his followers in the House. There is apparent some degree of personal feeling in their defense of their leader, aside from their devotion to the policies of the Conservative party.

The address of the Minister of Agriculture Hon. Robert Weir, was accorded a full House but Mr. Weir found the going rather hard, in the present desperate condition of that industry. The Minister is a fluent but not particularly impressive speaker and he seemed to have some difficulty getting the wheat preference clause of the treaty sufficiently unfolded in his own mind to explain it to the satisfaction of the opposition. Any Minister of Agriculture must find the road full of rocks these days.

There would be no point in reviewing the speeches of the various party members on either side as they simply support the policy for or against the agreements, of their respective party leaders, but the members outside the two major party groups are not so unanimous in their opinion of the treaty. The one point these members agree on, one in which the Liberals concur, is that the exchange rate between Canada and Great Britain practically nullifies any advantage the preferences might otherwise give this country, especially on agricultural products.

Mr. Speakman, M.A. Red Deer, who always employs reason in his reasonings, said he found many arguments in favor of the agreements but also many arguments against them and he could only hope to have the opportunity of going over the treaty clause by clause in committee of the whole House before deciding his stand on the matter. He said "May I suggest to the Prime Minister that there is a factor which has not been touched, I refer to the question of exchange, which if allowed to remain as it is nullifies the effect of any agreement. It has been pointed out in this House that the Australian farmer receives seventy two cents a bushel for his wheat—not including the bonus of nine cents—while the prairie farmer gets only twenty eight cents for at least as good wheat. In other words, if an Australian farmer and a Canadian farmer each has a $4,000 mortgage on his farm, and 4000 bushels of wheat, the Australian farmer will have $3,700 to apply to the mortgage while the Canadian farmer will have $1,100 from the same amount of wheat. In dairy products, the same thing applies in regard to Denmark, which has been wise enough to retain its currency upon a parity with sterling. May I say that the greatest weakness, greatest disappointment and the greatest mark the Conservative made was when they overlooked and ignored this all-important question. I say overlooked and ignored. It is true that they accepted the responsibility of considering it and appointed a committee for the purpose. They put at its head the one man in the present government (Hon. H. H. Stevens) who knows most about it and who is most sincerely interested in it, and then that committee brought in a resolution of pious and unmeaning platitudes. If I do support the agreement one argument in my mind would be this: believing that the effects of the agreement will be absolutely nullified by the exchange situation, and believing that even this government will be forced to a realization of that fact before long, to put the agreement into when the government will tackle that problem in earnest and attempt to solve it." Mr. Speakman is regarded as one of the most earnestly thoughtful members in the House and is listened to with the utmost attention.

Mr. Woodsworth also condemned the Conference for its failure in regard to the monetary situation. Mr. Woodsworth said: "In the Prime Ministers opening speech at the Conference he admitted that international finance had broken down—Did the Conference do anything to rehabilitate international finance, or imper agricultural products. Mr. Speakman, M.A. Red Deer, who always employs reason in his reasonings, said he found many arguments in favor of the agreements but also many arguments against them and he could only hope to have the opportunity of going over the treaty clause by clause in committee of the whole House before deciding his stand on the matter. He said "May I suggest to the Prime Minister that there is a factor which has not been touched, I refer to the question of exchange, which if allowed to remain as it is nullifies the effect of any agreement. Mr. Speakman is regarded as one of the most earnestly thoughtful members in the House and is listened to with the utmost attention.

parliament is becoming a farcical affair—very soon some of us, if we are to retain our self-respect, will have to tell our constituents that it is practically useless to send us here. We have before us an agreement which no doubt the promoters sincerely believe to be of advantage to this country but the members of parliament have not one chance in ten thousand of making any change in it. The Conservative followers are committed to support their leader. During the eleven years I have sat in the House I can recall only three men who, on major questions, broke with their parties—only three. Not one of these men was allowed to remain in the House. This is a rather serious situation. I am not particularly blaming the followers of the present administration but I must point out that the practice I have described, one which has fastened itself upon this country is becoming almost part of our constitution and this is subversive of anything like democracy. Surely we can get no further with the solution of the problem that confront us until men come here free to vote in accordance with their convictions, not only with regard to the monetary situation but in all matters.

So far we have had no cold weather, and Sunday was bright and clear and it was warm enough that top coats were not essential until mid afternoon.

How Blessed Are We?

How often, in the midst of our discussion of the "Count Our Many Blessings" and really name them one by one, to see what the Lord has done for us. True, the picture seems dark before us many times, and we feel that the effort is almost not worthwhile. But in comparison with reports, both verbal and printed from other points we have much to be grateful for.

For example. While prices for produce have been disappointing, yet there are few families without a liberal supply of flour, vegetables, meat and pickles, fruits etc., for the coming winter. How much is it worth? Probably not much if one were to sell it, or offer it for sale, but it means that we are not going to go hungry, nor be short of the necessaries of life during the coming winter. We could find thousands and tens of thousands of families in other towns and cities who are without even a week's supply of food in advance. How would you like to exchange positions with them?

Statistics brought back by Pres.
H. S. Allen from his recent visit to Salt Lake City show a real pitiful condition existing amongst many people there. For the portion of this year up to October 1st, in ten of the Stages in the Church which include that city, relief has been given by the Church to the extent of $12,000 a month in these ten stakes in order to keep people from actual suffering and this was in addition to the other relief agencies, 7 or 8 in number, all helping in various ways to mitigate want and suffering.

We could point to nation after nation and locality after locality where people are actually starving, and yet the surpluses in all lines were never greater than at present.
Japan, with people eating grass roots, entrails of fish, and anything that will assuage the pains of hunger. Jobless all over the world are sending delegations and demands to Governments for food, raiment and shelter, because they have no means of getting it for themselves.

We should not feel discouraged.
We should not feel that all is lost.
There must be a turn in the road, and we believe that there is no locality on the North American continent better able to await the turn with less inconvenience than Raymond and district. We may be wrong in this.
If we are we would like to hear the views of the other district which is better situated. True we have made mistaken. We can look back and see where we could have arranged to make things better if we had taken advice years ago. We did not do this.

Worrying and talking depression will not pay bills. If we haven't the money to try and barter for the things we need. Keep our chins up, meet our neighbor with a grin, and instead of talking depression, see if we can't talk something more enjoyable. We have no Depression.

WHY 4 p.c. COUPON WITH 4 1/2 p.c. YIELD

Faced with the problem of bringing out a new issue, the Minister of Finance chose a 4 p.c. bond to be offered at a discount, rather than 4 1/2 issue in par. In this he was guided by the existing investment demand.
The net result to the government is the same, as the money costs the Treasury Department the same in both instances. But buyer of government bonds will probably find the present issue offered at 93.45 more attractive than the presently outstanding Canadian Government issues, none of which is offered at more than a fraction below its value at maturity.
Indeed, many Canadian issues are selling above par.

More investors dislike paying a premium on a bond because a definite proportion of each annual interest payment must again be amortized.
Take care of the ultimate shrinkage in capital account. Mathematically the yield on both investments may be the same but the investor unhersittingly chooses the bond offered at discount rather than those which sell above par.

Particularly are they apt to choose a bond offered at a substantial discount in times like these in which investments point to the maintenance of the downward trend in interest rates, with a probable appreciation in the price of bonds. This is the moment when the investor pays no income tax on the 6.55 point discount at which the bonds are being offered.
The investor pays income tax only on the 4 p.c. coupon rate and not on the 4 1/2 p.c. yield.

FROZEN CIDER POPULAR

Modern science is always coming to the fore with some new wrinkle which extends the market for farm products. One of the latest evolutions is frozen sweet cider. When it comes from the press, the cider is frozen to zero degrees F. and held at that temperature until thawed for sale or use. When thawed out it is perfectly fresh and sweet. It will keep seven months or more held at zero, and there is every prospect that it may be developed into an important beverage outlet or by-product for orchardists. — Dominion Department

NOTHING SERIOUS

The lives of thousands of Canadian children have been lost because parents have thought that measles is "nothing serious", and that "it is better to have it and be done with it."

We all know that practically every child has measles sometime during his life. The disease is very common and, as obviously nearly everyone recovers from an attack, it is apt to be looked upon more as a nuisance than anything else.

A small percentage of all who contract measles do not recover. However, the number of cases is so great that hundreds of deaths in Canada, each year, from measles are represented by this small percentage.

Measles is always serious because of the number of deaths which occur, and because it causes permanent damage to the bodies of some of those who recover. The younger the child, the more likely it is the disease will prove fatal.

When recovering from measles, the body is less able to withstand the attack of the germs of other disease. The result of this lack of resistance is that pneumonia often develops during convalescence, and is not infrequently followed by tuberculosis.

There are certain practical applications of this knowledge which all parents should understand. The first is that every effort should be made to keep the young child away from existing cases of measles. A child should never come in contact with other children who have measles or who are suspected of having the disease.

Nine-tenths of all deaths from measles occur during the first five years of life. After five years of age the child is much less likely to suffer a severe attack. Parents will accomplish a great deal in safeguarding the lives of their children when they succeed in protecting them from measles during their first years of life.

The second point of importance is that the child who has measles requires good care. He must be kept in bed, no matter how well he may seem to be, until the doctor allows him to get up. Getting up too soon is the usual way in which the child catches cold; then pneumonia may follow.

The child who has measles is suffering from an acute infection. It is a serious condition for the child and it should be treated as such. He should be isolated so that he will not spread the disease, and he himself should be under medical care. The attack itself may appear to be mild, but unless proper care is given the result may be serious. No one can tell, so the only safe way is to give proper care to every child.

If your young child has been exposed to measles, ask our doctor at once about protecting him through the use of convalescent serum or adult whole blood.

to general policies but with regard to the particular issues that come before this House."

Mr. A. W. Neill, Independent from Vancouver Island, also asked the government to "deflate prices the same way done in England. It was a success there and should be here. I would bring immediate relief and would be better than drifting along as we are doing." Mr. Neill, who is the Alpha and Omega of his own "group" is a "canny Scot" of long experience in public life and is not sparing in his condemnation of political methods. He cited preferences on grindstones and canned clams, on which the trade is practically nil, and said "This is the sort of tripe dished out to men who are out of work." Describing disastrous storms in South Africa, whose coming is presaged by a rustling in the tree tops, Mr. Neill said "When I hear good Anglo-Saxon men and women talking communism I sometimes wonder whether we should not listen to the fluttering in the tree tops and take immediate steps to meet this unemployment problem lest the whole economic structure be brought tumbling about our heads."

Mr. Nicholson, Conservative himself a lumberman, was enthusiastic about the opportunity given the lumberman by the agreements but said the effect would not be immediately apparent as Canadian lumbermen are not in a position at present to supply just the sort of lumber required in Great Britain. It would take at least the five-year period to realize the advantages of the Conference agreements.

After the adoption of the treaty it expected there will be opportunity given the House to go over the clauses in detail, so the end is not yet.

During the recent outbreak at Port mouth (Kingston) penitentiary a daily bulletin was given the House by the Minister of Justice, Hon. Hugh Guthrie. The new Superintendent of Penitentiaries, Brigadier-General Ormond (well known in the west, is now at Kingston investigating the cause of the outbreak, in which task he is understood to have the assistance of Major-General MacBrien, head of the R.C.M.P. In the meanwhile Acting Warden Gilbert Smith has been temporarily replaced by Lieut. Col. Meglaughlin, former O. C. of the Ottawa Cameron Highlanders. The rather ostentatiously military nature of the investigation at Kingston may seem to some of questionable wisdom at this time, but after all these expensive peace time officers are no doubt glad to make a gesture of employment once in a while.

Continuous unemployment, even though mitigated by a fat cheque at frequent intervals, must become very boring at times possibly one of the causes of war. Mr. Guthrie told the House it had come to his attention that some newspapers were suggesting the recent release of some Toronto brokers as a reason for the outbreak at Port mouth but the Minister could not agree with this. He explained that the release of these prisoners on expiration of half their sentences was only in accordance with the general practice in regard to first offenders. Any prisoner serving his first term whose crime has not been one of violence and whose conduct has been good is entitled to make application to the Department of Justice for release on ticket of leave. No prisoner needs to employ counsel to make this application, but an appeal "on a post-card or jail paper will be fairly and favorably dealt with." Ticket of leave simply means the remainder of the sentence is served at large, under certain restrictions such as reporting to the authorities periodically and if the rules are not observed the prisoner on parole can be returned to jail without further trial for the remainder of the sentence. The Minister said that most prisoners are aware of these regulations and the fact that the brokers were treated just as any pickpocket (no, he did not say any other) would scarcely be a cause of rioting at Portsmouth. All is apparently quiet there at present.

One of the pleasant events of the week was the honor paid Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett by the University of New York, conferring the degree of Doctor of Laws on the Prime Minister. Dr. Graves, President of the University, conferring the degree, described Mr. Bennett as "the foremost citizen of Canada, distinguished member of the Bar, member of patriotic and philanthropic organizations in time of war and of peace, Legislative and Ministerial servant of your country and pre-eminent leader in Imperial Conferences." Several Liberal speakers referred appreciatively to the honor done the Prime Minister.
